Zanesville Museum of Art Offering Free Admission Through January 5

Zanesville, Ohio—The Zanesville Museum of Art has received a sponsorship from Gottlieb, Johnston, Beam & Dal Ponte PLL to offer free admission to the museum through January 5, 2019. This sponsorship allows the community to experience the fascinating exhibition Rembrandt | The Consummate Etcher and Other 17th-Century Printmakers for free.

Rembrandt is generally considered one of the most significant figures in western art history due in part to his virtuoso style, the variety of his subject matter, and the sheer volume of work he produced in his fifty-year career as a painter, draughtsman, and printmaker. This exhibition brings together many of Rembrandt's most significant prints and those created by several of his contemporaries, all of whom were active during a period called the Dutch Golden Age—a period marked by tremendous economic growth and artistic achievement.

This is an excellent opportunity provided by Gottlieb, Johnston, Beam & Dal Ponte PLL to view original works by Dutch master Rembrandt as well as all of the other works on display at the Zanesville Museum of Art.
